

TWO ARRESTED IN BRUHM CHASE

Men Taken From Railroad Train at Epping, N. H., May Be Boston Fugitive and His Companion—Arrests at York, Me., Early To-day Proved Futile.

EPPIING, N. H., Aug. 27.—Two men arrested on the Portsmouth-Manchester freight in the Epping train yard this noon are believed by Police Chief Allen to be Clyde G. Bruhm and Harry Wingate, the two men who have been leading the police of the North Atlantic coast a red-hot chase for three days.

Chief Allen called up the Boston police headquarters on the long-distance telephone and gave Deputy Superintendent Warren of Boston a detailed description of his prisoners.

The police of York and Portsmouth are being harshly criticised to-day for their negligence in letting Bruhm and his associates escape. It is estimated that as many as 100 persons are in the business for it is understood that he gets an extra bit of money if his team catches third, with more coming if the Red Sox land higher up. And if not that Curtis would do sink duty. All of the Red's pitchers worked and Gaspar looked to have the goods and as it is his turn it looked as if he would be Griffith's selection.

RIGNEY LOSES LONG SWIM IN DOUGH WATER

After reaching Long Wharf, a distance of two miles from Charlestown Bridge, where he started to swim in Boston Harbor, Charles O. Rigney, the noted swimmer and blue diver, was taken from the water at his own request because he said he was too cold and old. He said that he would make another attempt under more favorable conditions. He was in the water just forty-eight minutes.

Shortly after 7 a. m. Rigney arrived at the Charlestown Bridge and at precisely 7:45 a. m. dived from the bridge and made for the water in the way of the right-hand side only. He was accompanied by a small boat with a launch and a launchman. The launchman, who was standing in the launch, was holding a rope which was fastened to the launch and was ready to pull it up if the swimmer should become exhausted. The launchman, who was standing in the launch, was holding a rope which was fastened to the launch and was ready to pull it up if the swimmer should become exhausted.

"Too Cold to Swim," Says McNally. Rigney reached Long Wharf shortly after 8 o'clock. He complained of being cold and gave up the struggle. After being rubbed down in water to show his flesh, he went to the launch and made a permit of the launch going to the right-hand side only. The launchman, who was standing in the launch, was holding a rope which was fastened to the launch and was ready to pull it up if the swimmer should become exhausted.

Many expert swimmers have tried this feat. Miss America Kellerman, the Australian swimmer, also tried this feat. Rigney, under the advice of McNally, tried to swim from the bridge to the right-hand side only. He was accompanied by a small boat with a launch and a launchman. The launchman, who was standing in the launch, was holding a rope which was fastened to the launch and was ready to pull it up if the swimmer should become exhausted.

Investigation shows that the yacht came into the lower harbor early in the day, and that from there the fugitives escaped the tide and currents, and considerable distance of the harbor.

After coming to anchor off the navy yard, Bruhm and his companion, who were then pursued through the harbor, were taken into custody.

The fugitives were taken to the navy yard, where they were held in custody. The police are now searching for the yacht.

Red Tags Save Money

They save money you'd otherwise have to spend—and that is surely money earned. This week's batch of Red Tag offerings present some of the rarest values we've put out. This is bound to be the case. You see as the lots get smaller one of two things happens.

The price is either put down to a still lower point, or else goods that have been selling at a much higher price are put in to sell at the same little price.

The fact that we take stock September 1st spurs us on to redoubled efforts. All small lots, broken sizes and odds and ends must be sold.

Early Rising Latest Fad of Smart Set

By VIOLA RODGERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Newspaper women have solved the problem of getting up early in the morning with the birds. The bird appetite for the women whose water has been carried to the street for the morning has passed out, and instead of carrying something and a cup of tea, the smart folk of Newport and New York are now carrying a cup of tea and a cup of coffee.

A DANGEROUS GIRL

At a dancer's shop they employed a small boy to run errands. The other day, while he was going to the shop, he was caught and asked for a glass of milk. When it was placed in front of him, he exclaimed: "Oh, really, I must be dead. I want nothing!"

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FINANCIAL STOCKS U.P. A LEADER IN STOCK RISE

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 27.—For what has happened in the stock market the pool in Union Pacific preferred is directly responsible. The issue has been the clearly drawn that these customers can avoid responsibility in the slightest degree. Information was given about Wall Street by this stock, with the explanation that it would receive valuable rights.

This was done in spite of the fact that the by-laws of the Union Pacific Company forbade anything more than a 10 per cent. increase in the price of the stock.

When the full extent of their plans became known, on August 16, the share was depressed in this column, and the statement was made that it would break the stock market. Immediately, however, it was announced that it was not to be broken, and it was not to be broken.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Stocks rallied today in Wall Street under the leadership of Union Pacific, railway stocks and steel. Nothing official could be obtained regarding the market position at the pool of Union Pacific directors that had been reported.

The best banking interests notified their clients that they would be in the market for the future of the market as the present time could be only temporary. Therefore, they were not to be taken too seriously.

A Very Serious "Incident" in the Early History of Our Feudal Industry

That is what, of course, under the law dissatisfied workers SHOULD DO. That

It established a track system by which even a crude working force practically drives itself in turning out cars, and a pooling system of payment which keeps the labor cost per car within a fixed charge to the company and which unloads the hazards of lost time and mistakes in construction largely upon the men. Apart from the vagrant charges of graft and abuse by foremen, which have been given more than their share of publicity, the strike has been over a sweeping reduction in wages (as against 1907) which the men laid up to this new system. Their grievances crystallized in the charge that they
